Voters Cautioned On Proper Ballot Marking

Careless Citizen Can Lose Ticket If Mistake Made

'X' To Be Only Mark Counted; City Polling Places Listed

Tuesday's election has been labeled the most important the present generation has seen.

Although procedure in voting this year virtually is the same as in previous elections, there is one ballot rule which may throw out the vote of a careless citizen.

It results from a ruling handed down by Secretary of State Edward Hummel. After 25 independent electors were added to the ballot alongside the usual Republican and Democratic tickets. The 25 independents are the leftwing backers of Henry Wallace's Communist-backed Progressive Party.

The state's ruling regarding the presidential ballots provides that a ballot marked with an "X" in either circle of the first two columns or marked with an "X" in front of the candidates in either of the first two columns, and also marked with an "X" for one or more of the 25 electors in the third column, will be an invalid ballot and no vote for any candidate.

FURTHER, if an "X" mark is placed in the shaded area above the list of 25 electors and also an "X" in one of the circles in one of the first two columns, the vote will count for either the Republican or Democratic candidates, whichever the case may be.

Finally, any ballot which bears any marks other than "X" marks placed thereon by the voter is invalid and the ballot will not be counted for any candidate.

Another ballot which may be voted "straight" is the state and county candidates' ballot headed by the Democratic and Republican candidates for governor.

If the voter wishes, he may "scratch" his ballot at will. This is expected to be common practice in Pickaway County.

For example: A voter wishes to vote for more Democrats than Republicans, yet favors a couple of GOPsters.

He may place an "X" in the circle heading the Democratic ticket (under the rooster) and then place an "X" in front of the Republican candidates he favors. This automatically casts votes for all Democrats with the exception of those seeking office against the Republicans who received the "scratch" votes.

Only exception to this procedure is with regard to county commissioner candidates where two are to be elected. Each of two candidates must be X'd regardless of party.

The voter may, however, ignore the circles heading the two party columns and vote for each (Continued on Page Two)

Soviet, Yank Officials Seek ECA Aide Killer

VIENNA, Nov. 1—A military dragnet was thrown out today for four Russian soldiers believed responsible for the brutal murder of a U. S. Marshall Plan official in Vienna.

American and Soviet military police and Austrian civil police joined in the widening manhunt for the killers of Irving Ross, 36, whose battered body was found in a field near Vienna's Inzersdorf suburb early yesterday.

Austrian police officials called the crime "the most brutal murder we have investigated." Ross was special assistant to Westmore Wilcox, Economic Cooperation Administration chief in Vienna and a native of East Hardwick, Vt.

Details of the killing were pieced together from information supplied by Anna Sutkenina, a young Austrian girl who was found unconscious and suffering from a fractured skull in the same section of Vienna, shortly after Ross' body was found. She is in critical condition.

EDISON, Ga., Nov. 1—Officials are investigating today a train wreck near Edison in which two crew members were killed and ten persons injured, two seriously.

AFTER Bernhard Pfister, 6, had been given his allowance at a bread line in Vienna, he dubiously examines a roll and a loaf of bread made from white flour sent from the U. S. 1,500 Kids Honored

Achievement Day Held In Coliseum

Nearly 1,500 Pickaway County youngsters, their parents and county businessmen attended the Youth Achievement Program in Fairgrounds Coliseum Saturday.

The Saturday affair was said to have been the largest single program honoring youth ever sponsored in Ohio, honoring youngsters in 4-H and FFA Clubs as well as Boy and Girl Scouts.

Paul Teegarden's Reserve Champion Beef Female of Pickaway County Fair was whittled down to the last five pounds at the affair, according to L. A. Best, county extension agent. Teegarden is a member of Madison Livewire 4-H Club.

The achievement program itself was lively, consuming about two hours. Vaden Couch, head of the Circleville Chamber of Commerce, made the opening address—"Stop and Find Out Why". His address was followed by a combined group of Girl Scouts, who sang the Girl Scout Song and presented their salute to the flag directed by Mrs. Orville Downs and Mrs. John Gordon.

DR. A. D. BLACKBURN occupied the next spot on the program, presenting the various 4-H Club health awards. Blackburn was instrumental in deciding (Continued on Page Two)

All County Men Flunk Physical Given For Draft

None of the six Pickaway County men, who were called in the October quota, passed the draft pre-induction physical examination held last Friday at Fort Hayes, Columbus.

However, Miss Betty Miner, clerk of the local draft board, said one of the number will be returned in November to undergo another x-ray test. His name was not revealed.

The six men now will receive new classification numbers in the board files. All men sent from here are tagged I-A, but that status must be confirmed by Army medical officials.

This county's November quota is set at 24 men who will be sent to the Columbus camp for physical examinations on the 24th.

Adelphi Youth Dies In Crash

4 Other Persons Are Injured In 3 Circleville Area Mishaps

A 19-year-old Adelphi youth was killed and four persons were injured in three Circleville area accidents over the weekend.

Funeral services for Harold Luther Nungester will be held at 2:30 p. m. Tuesday in Pleasant Hill church, south of Adelphi with the Rev. Sanford Price officiating.

The body was to be removed Monday from Deffenbaugh funeral home in Circleville to the family residence. Burial will be made in the churchyard cemetery.

Young Nungester was killed about 8:45 p. m. Saturday on Route 56, one-half mile south of Laurelville in Hocking County when the car in which he was riding went out of control and overturned in a cornfield.

State Highway Patrolman Charles Watters of the Circleville post, said the car was driven by Alvin L. Arledge, 21, of South Bloomfield.

Arledge reportedly lost control of his vehicle on a curve. It skidded off the highway, hit a fence and overturned several times before coming to a stop.

INJURED in the crash were the driver and a companion, Mary Louise Greeno, 16, of Adelphi. Both were treated in Berger hospital. A fourth occupant of the car, Ann Nungester, 15, of Laurelville, a cousin of the dead youth, was unhurt, Patrolman Watters said.

Officers said the crash victim was dead when they arrived at the scene of the accident. He reportedly died of a crushed skull, suffered when the automobile, a convertible, overturned on him.

Chiang's Planes Slap Back At Mukden Claimers

NANKING, Nov. 1—Nationalist planes were reported authoritatively tonight to have bombed Mukden an hour after Manchuria's chief city was occupied by Chinese Communist troops.

A reliable report received in Nanking said the air raid was carried out at 4 p. m. Nanking time.

An earlier authoritative report radioed from Mukden said the Communist troops completed occupation of the South Manchurian metropolis at 3 p. m.

The report of the air raid said none of the Americans remaining in the city was injured. The number of Americans in the city was fixed at 13, including 10 consular personnel and three dependents. The dependents were Consul General Angus Ward's wife and two minor children of a consulate mechanic.

Other Americans in North China had been warned shortly before Mukden's fall to evacuate the region.

Extent of the casualties and damage from the bombing attack was not immediately available.

Primary targets of the bombers were believed to include Mukden's arsenal, the finest of its type in all China, and the great railway station.

The raid was reliably reported to have been carried out from the big government military airfield at Peiping where American-type B-25 and B-24 bombers and P-51 fighter planes were stationed.

Patrolman Watters said they were Wesley T. Cowart, 44, of Texas, and Sammy Cooper, 31, of Washington C. H., both occupants of the automobile.

3.5 Million Votes Seen

Ohio To Ponder 344 Bond Issues

COLUMBUS, Nov. 1—Some 3.5 million Ohioans—an all-time record number—will cast their ballots tomorrow for President, governor, state officers, 23 Ohio congressmen, and literally hundreds of judges and county officials.

They will vote also on 344 proposed bond issues, totaling $149,220,264; 769 local tax levies, and dozens upon dozens of miscellaneous questions or wet-or-dry issues in local option areas.

Most observers believe Ohio will follow an anticipated Republican trend and vote to give the state's 25 electoral votes to New York's Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, expected to snow under President Truman in Ohio by 200,000 or more. The race for the governorship, however, definitely is another matter.

The battle between Gov. Thomas J. Herbert and the Democrat he unseated two years ago, Ex-Gov. Frank J. Lausche, is a neck-and-neck race right down into the home stretch, despite gains made in recent weeks by Lausche, always a strong finisher.

ELECTION officials are under orders to count presidential ballots first. Because that count may be delayed by the tally of the 25 independent electoral candidates supporting Third Party Candidate Henry A. Wallace, it will be sometime Wednesday before Ohioans know certainly who will be governor in January.

The list of other state officials includes lieutenant governor, secretary of state, state treasurer, attorney general, three supreme court judges, and state senators and state representatives.

The 3.5 million vote estimate of Leland S. Dougan, assistant secretary of state, would represent an increase of nearly 200,000 over the previous record total of 3,319,912 ballots cast for President in 1944.

Greek Cabinet Crisis Averted

ATHENS, Nov. 1—Greece's cabinet crisis appeared to be temporarily averted today, reportedly through the intervention of King Paul.

Deputy Liberal Leader Sophocles Venizelos, a former premier, announced that no move to overthrow the cabinet of Premier Themistocles Sophoulis, 88-year-old liberal leader would be made until next weekend.

The move came after a meeting between the king and Venizelos. The latter was reportedly persuaded to refrain from such action until Foreign Minister Constantine Tsaldaris returns from Paris.

20 KILLED BY MALADY

Pennsylvania Death Smog Mystery Still Unsolved

DONORA, Pa., Nov. 1—The Washington County coroner's office reported today that autopsies performed on two of the victims of the Donora death smog showed no indication of toxic gases.

Coroner L. C. Gray described the deaths as "typical cardiac-asthma deaths" to heighten the mystery of what killed 20 of the town's elderly residents and hospitalized scores of others.

The Donora fire department reported that it had been called to treat three additional cases during the night, but none were described as serious.

The atmosphere was clear today in Donora and officials said the plague appeared to have passed, as state and city health investigators opened a probe into the death-dealing smog.

Dr. William Rongaus, a member of the Donora board of health, blamed "something in the air" for the wave of deaths. He declared:

"IT'S MURDER. There's nothing else you can call it. There's something in the air here that isn't found elsewhere. There was fog in Monessen, too, but it didn't kill people there."

Dr. Rongaus said that although those who died were all elderly persons, many of those treated were "young and strong, and had never had any symptoms of asthma."

Norbert Hockman, chemist with the Pittsburgh Smoke Prevention Bureau, who accompanied Dr. I. Hope Alexander of the Pittsburgh board of health to Donora, said that there definitely (Continued on Page Two)

Georgia Hunts Youth-Slayer

CARROLLTON, Ga., Nov. 1—A statewide hunt which spread into Alabama was launched today by the Georgia state highway patrol for a man who killed a Georgia Tech student and tried to assault his girl companion.

The student was Carl Stevens Jr., 22, of Carrollton. His 18-year-old companion's name was withheld.

Stevens' body was found near a swamp a short distance from Carrollton last night. He had been shot in the chest and the body bore cuts and bruises. Officials said they believed the victim was shot when he fought with his assailant.

13 Million Citizens To Stay Home?

Dewey Believed To Be Shoo-In

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1—Sixty-three million Americans are qualified for vote in tomorrow's presidential election but experts agree that 13 million of them will stay home while 50 million decide upon the next White House tenant.

The American people are ready today to show a strident world how to use ballots instead of force to order a new national administration into power.

In a shining demonstration of how Democracy works, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey is an overwhelming favorite to win the presidency from President Truman in tomorrow's poll.

At the same time, the electorate will choose a new House of Representatives, 32 senators, 31 governors and a host of state officials.

Dewey should win a minimum of 27 states, having 337 electors. He is ahead in two more, with 12 electors, and might win four more. President Truman has eight states, with 89 electors. Gov. Strom Thurmond, the States' Rights, has four states and 2 other electors for a total of 40. Henry Agard Wallace, Progressive nominee, is an also-ran.

BOTH PRESIDENT Truman and Dewey will make their final appeals to the voters by radio tonight. Dewey, after resting most of the day at his farm near Pawling, N. Y., will motor to New York City for a broadcast from there at 9 p. m. (EST). The President, after attending a Red Cross breakfast, a luncheon, a Shrine parade and a dinner in Kansas City during the day, will speak over all four networks from his home in Independence, Mo., at 10:30 p. m. (EST).

This is the first postwar presidential election and the forty-first in the nation's history. Four (Continued on Page Two)

City Boys Learn We Enforce Law In These Parts

Circleville Township Squire Oscar Root and two state game protectors teamed up Saturday to make duck hunting for six Columbus men a costly venture.

The township magistrate cocked a wary eye toward the northern neighbors as he listened to Game Protectors Irvin J. Patrick and Clarence Francis read off two accusations against each man.

When the proceedings came to an end, each of the Capitol city nimrods pleaded guilty and tossed a total of $170 into the squire's collection plate.

James Clipner, 24, was fined $15 for failing to display his hunting license and $10 for trespassing; Clyde Swank, 43, divided in $10 for trespassing and $15 for hunting with a repeating shotgun carrying more than three shells.

It cost William Moore, 38, a total of $30 in fines for hunting after hours and failing to display his license, and his brother, Claude Moore, 46, pitched in $30 fines on the same two accusations.

Robert Hunt, 32, was fined $30 for using a repeating shotgun for and stalking game after hours; and W. F. Dalton, 24, paid out $30 for failing to display his hunting license and hunting after dark.

years ago, when the late FDR was given a fourth term, all the world was at war.

Today there are local conflicts scattered around the globe and the rest of the world stands by in fear of an atomic conflagration.

Interest in tomorrow's balloting has been intense and languid by turns in different states.

In some of these, close gubernatorial or senatorial races, however, will bring out the vote.

In Kansas and Utah, there are state fights over liquor control laws. Seven states—Nebraska, Indiana, Iowa, Missouri, Minnesota, South Dakota and Wisconsin—will vote on state bonuses for veterans.

Dewey is a shoo-in for the presidency. He appears to have sewn up California, Colorado, Connecticut, Delaware, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Nebraska, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, North Dakota, Ohio, Dakota, Vermont, Virginia, Oregon, Pennsylvania, South Washington, Wisconsin and Wyoming. He is reported ahead in Florida and Montana. These states have 349 electors.

candidate of his choice individually.

CANDIDATES seeking office on the judicial ballot will not be listed under party headings. Theoretically, they are non-partisan.

As a result, the candidate will vote for these candidates according to the individual candidate's name. If he insists upon voting for such a candidate strictly according to party lines, he must secure advance information as to the candidate's political affiliations.

Fourth ballot handed Pickaway Countians will contain questions and issues. One calls for funds for the repair of roads and bridges washed out in a recent flash flood in Walnut Township.

A second seeks $100,000 for improvements at Pickaway Fairgrounds.

Individual townships and school districts will have their own added issues.

FOLLOWING is a list of Circleville precincts and locations: First ward, precinct A—Shell filling station on North Court street; first ward, precinct B—American hotel on North Court street; first ward, precinct C—Community house on East Main street; first ward, precinct D—Haveling filling station on East Main street; and first ward, precinct E—Forest cemetery on North Court street.

Second ward, precinct A—Fire station on East Franklin street; second ward, precinct B—Shellhammer garage on East Mound street; third ward, precinct A—County engineers office in the courthouse; third ward, precinct B—Winfough garage on East Ohio street.

Fourth ward, precinct A—George Himrod residence on South Pickaway street; fourth ward, precinct B—Circleville Implement Co., on Clinton and Mill streets; fourth ward, precinct C—Sears and Nicholas on South Washington street.

Circleville Township's polling place will be at 325 East Main street; Williamsport and Deercreek Township in the Township Pavilion in Williamsport; Ashville, East, in the Council house and Ashville, West, at Hedges lumber yard.

ly was enough sulphur trioxide in the air to be toxic.

Hockman explained that sulphur dioxide coming in contact with air forms sulphur trioxide, a deadly gas.

Gov. James H. Duff ordered state health investigators to Donora to ascertain the cause of the apparently poisonous gases to mix with the smog. Donora is a small steel mill town huddled in the Allegheny Mountains, 25 miles southwest of Pittsburgh.

A preliminary investigation by health officials put the blame for the fatal smog on a high pressure area which prevented the movement of air at the ground level, saturating the air with smoke and fumes from the steel and a zinc mill.

At the request of city officials, the American Steel and Wire Co., one of the largest plants in Donora, shut down their smelting department until the emergency is over. The plant has been in operation many years without such effects.

Pickaway District Boy Scout Chairman Richard Morris followed Blackburn, presenting certificates of achievement to his outstanding troops for their participation in the county fair.

Highlight of the program was when C. V. Neal, chairman of the county 4-H Club foundation, drive and adviser to the Darby Fine and Dandy Club, presented a check for $1,800 to Billy Palmer, state Foundation Fund supervisor.

The money had been earned by county 4-H'ers during the summer months. Purpose of the fund is to provide monies so that 4-H Club advisers may be suitably recognized for their efforts.

of its ballots for Dewey while Truman will garner 44.9 percent.

In the Ohio gubernatorial race, the Columbus poll predicts that Former Gov. Frank J. Lausche will carry Pickaway County, given credit for 53.8 percent of the vote here. Gov. Thomas Herbert, the Republican candidate, will draw 46.2 percent of Pickaway's ballots, the poll shows.

The poll, covering 18 Central Ohio counties, predicts that Dewey will get 53.5 percent of the total vote in these counties. Truman will receive 44.2 percent and Wallace will get 2.3 percent.

The total shows Lausche and Herbert split 50-50 in the total vote for the 18 counties.

TELEVISION READY, TOO

Radiomen Plan All-Out Coverage On Election

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—Tomorrow night, radio will do the biggest job in its comparatively brief history on the coverage of election returns. This year for the first time, television will get into the act too.

The four major networks and their more than 1,000 affiliates will drop regular programs early in the evening, around 7 or 8 p. m. (EST).

Each network will have its staff of commentators on duty in New York to report and interpret the returns.

ABC will have a group of 25

Home Ownership On Increase In College Town

BOWLING GREEN, Nov. 1.—Home ownership in Bowling Green has taken a big jump within the past decade, according to a survey made public today by Prof. Lewis F. Manhart of Bowling Green State university.

A survey sampling 10 percent of the town's 2,200 dwellings revealed 71 percent ownership as against 55 percent in 1939. The check was made by Manhart's students in a class on market research. He said that the current housing shortage has forced many persons to buy.

Other findings from the survey include the fact that building permits have dropped off 30 percent in the last year, new dwellings average 4.6 rooms, and 67 of every 100 dwellings in Bowling Green are single units.

Manhart said that building costs for frame houses are now 2.1 times what they were in 1940, but that brick home costs have risen only 1.8 times over the 1940 figure.

Kiddies To Get Venison Dinner

ELYRIA, Nov. 1.—As the result of an auto accident here Thursday night, children in Lorain County Children's Home at Oberlin will eat venison this weekend.

N. A. Stegman of Elyria told deputy sheriffs that a deer ran from the side of the road into his car's path and was struck fatally. Deputies said it was a doe about two years old.

commentators, headed by Walter Winchell, Drew Pearson, Dr. George Gallup, George Sokolsky, Elmer Davis and Erwin D. Canham, and assisted by a large number of editors, tabulators, rewrite men and assistants. Headquarters will be in one of the big studios in Radio City.

LOWELL THOMAS and Edward R. Murrow will head the CBS staff, which will include Eric Sevareid, Don Hollenbeck, Ned Calmer, Elmo Roper, Allan Jackson, Joseph C. Harsch, Grant Holcomb, John Adams, Jack Walters and Willard Shadel.

Thomas will inaugurate the proceedings by doing his regular 6:45 p. m. newscast from a CBS mobile unit enroute from Radio City to the CBS election headquarters.

Mutual, which is setting up headquarters in the grand ballroom of the Ritz Carlton hotel, will have on hand Gabriel Heatter, Fulton Lewis Jr., John B. Kennedy, William L. Shirer, Bill Henry, Cedric Foster, Cecil Brown, Bill Cunningham, Robert F. Hurleigh, Henry La Cossitt, Rex Miller, Bill Slater, David Wills, Fred Van Deventer and others.

NBC will have H. V. Kaltenborn and Robert Trout heading its lineup, which also will include Richard Harkness, Morgan Beatty, Ben Grauder, John Swayze, Ray Henle, Ned Brooks, W. W. Chaplin, Robert Warren, John MacVane and Kenneth Banghart.

Probably the most spectacular aspect of the television coverage will be the demonstration of a huge, outdoor projection-type receiver in Rockefeller Plaza.

The equipment, weighing two tons, will be set up in the plaza and will project NBC's television programs on a 15 by 20 foot screen mounted on the side of the RCA Building.

2 County Girls Given Mention In History Test

Jo Ann May of Walnut Township high school and Kathryn June Morris of Pickaway Township high school received honorable mention awards in the Ohio history, government and citizenship test at Ohio university Saturday.

The two girls were named 11th and 12th respectively in the state following the essay examination prepared by Carl V. Weygant, chief justice of the Ohio Supreme Court. There were 98 contestants entered in competition.

Miss May is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Millard May of Amanda Route 1 and Miss Morris is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Neil Morris of Kingston Route 1.

Prizes Offered To Get Out Vote

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 1.—CIO unions in Allegheny County today revealed a new method to "get out the vote" on Election Day.

Taking a cue from the "give-away" craze, many of the 300 locals in the Pittsburgh area have set up election lotteries with prizes including new stoves, refrigerators, washing machines and so forth.

Union officials emphasized that it's all free and no attempt will be made to tell the members how to vote.

Osinski Must Die In Chair

TOLEDO, Nov. 1.—James C. Osinski, 39, must die in the electric chair for the Dec. 13 slaying of his wife, Loretta, and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Dittmeyer of Toledo.

That was the verdict handed down by a jury of four men and eight women late Friday in Lucas County common pleas court. The jury made no recommendation for mercy in finding the defendant guilty of first-degree murder.

Under Ohio law, Common Pleas Judge John Q. Carey, who heard the trial, will now be required to sentence Osinski to be electrocuted in Ohio penitentiary.

Toledoan Weds Girl Of Royalty

TOLEDO, Nov. 1.—Sylvia Maria Southard, daughter of Princess Alfred Hohenlohe-Schloß-Friedstein of Stainaca, Austria, and John M. Tiedtke, wealthy businessman, were married here late yesterday.

Dr. R. Lincoln Long officiated at the ceremonies in Collingwood Lutheran church. The wedding was attended only by the immediate members of the two families.

The couple left immediately after the ceremony for a honeymoon trip to Jamaica. They will be at home in Winter Park, Fla., after Dec. 1.

IF TRUMAN RESIGNED

IF GOV. Dewey should be elected, many persons may recall that in 1916 President Wilson planned, if defeated for reelection, to appoint the President-elect as secretary of state, then resign and get Vice-President Marshall to do likewise. Thus he planned to prevent the United States from being ruled for four months by an administration discredited at the polls.

That might have been a good idea then, and might be so today. Unfortunately it is no longer possible. If President Truman resigned or died, the heir would not be, as in Wilson's day, the secretary of state after the vice-president, but the speaker of the House of Representatives, Joseph W. Martin. This change was one piece of legislation on which President Truman and the Republican Congress were able to agree. It effectively prevents the President from designating his heir if that is to be someone other than the vice-president, as in the present instance.

Probably Dewey, if he should gain the title of President-elect, would be glad enough to have three months in which to prepare for the presidency, without having to assume its tasks at once.

FRENCH VOTING

THE de Gaulle party in France seems to have shown less strength than had been anticipated in the recent electoral college voting. The middle parties made the strongest showing.

These results may have little significance as an indication of popular support. The electoral college in France is elected not by general vote but by the voting of selected community leaders. The distribution of the votes followed generally the division of party strength in the present lower house of Parliament, and perhaps it means only that there has been little shifting among party leaders.

Nevertheless it seems to foreshadow selection of a middle-road upper house by the electoral college. The present government, which depends on the support of the middle parties, may be strengthened by these results.

JUST LIKE OLD TIMES

"YOOHOO! Bottom rail on top now!" This cry, attributed to the freed Negroes in carpet-bagger days, is an apt description of Soviet Russia. More and more it appears that autocracy still rules with the familiar weapons of censorship, secret police, and exile to Siberia. Only the system is administered now not by the tsar and the nobility, but by intellectuals and labor organizers whom the tsarist police used to seize on sight.

The French proverb applies also: "The more things change, the more they remain the same."

Does any mature American remember a presidential campaign in which the candidates evoked less personal enthusiasm?

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

Whenever the Daily Worker is for someone, it is sound to take note. For the Daily Worker supports Soviet Russia and the Soviet Russian position against the United States.

Anyone that Soviet Russia favors, I, for one, will not vote or—unless by his subsequent conduct he proves that he has repudiated the association and brought distress to his sponsors.

A lot of old-fashioned left-wingers have suddenly discovered that it is wise to have a change of heart, but the test, is not lip service; it is a complete and total denunciation of the Communists and all their work.

On July 28, 1947, the Daily Worker published an article from Washington, written by Rob Hall, on the subject of the 80th Congress. The heroes, from the Communist standpoint, of that Congress are listed in that article. Here is the exact wording:

"The heroes of the 80th Congress are few. They include a dozen senators led by Pepper of Florida, Taylor of Idaho and Murray of Montana. One of their number is a Republican, Morse of Oregon. In the House, progressives were even more hopelessly outnumbered, but there, too, a few fought for the policies of Roosevelt. Chief among them were Marcantonio, Powell, Klein and Celler of New York, Douglas and Hollifield of California, and Eberharter of Pennsylvania."

I do not believe that the Daily Worker will continue to list Morse as one of its heroes. As for the rest, I am sure that they have not lost their popularity. I have seen no evidence of such a change of heart in the Daily Worker. In fact, it continues to heroize these worthy subjects.

Pepper did courageously refuse to run for vice-president on the Wallace ticket. He preferred to remain a Democrat. Of course, had he walked out of the Democratic Party, he might have been out of the Senate in due course. However, he did not take the risk of being elected vice-president on the Wallace ticket. He left that to Sen. Glen Taylor, who made the valiant sacrifice. At first Taylor was almost the equal of Wallace himself, but in recent weeks he seems to have wandered off the front pages.

Senator Murray of Montana, who is running for reelection this year, is undoubtedly embarrassed by glorification in the Daily Worker in the year 1948, but as an ardent New Dealer, he surely planned it that way and if his plans went awry, that is his fault and will undoubtedly result in repudiation at the polls by Montanans who want none of Stalin's praise directly or indirectly. Possibly Murray does not object to being a Daily Worker hero in New York as long as it is kept quiet in Montana.

The test of congressional worthiness, according to the Daily Worker, is the relationship of these heroes to Communists, for this is what Rob Hall says:

"It was a session of scurrilous red-baiting which was not confined to the House Un-American Committee. Because some dared to oppose the violation of Constitutional rights by this latter group, they were sentenced to jail."

Every vote on a tax levy or a bond issue is in part a fight between two familiar groups—those who would vote for every proposition to spend public money, even for painting the moon, and those who would vote against them all, no matter what was at stake. Usually these extremes cancel each other out, leaving the more open-minded citizens to decide the issue.

As matters stand, everybody is always worrying about Russia, and vice versa. What a world!

MARRY for MONEY

CHAPTER THIRTY-EIGHT

"WHAT DO YOU mean, I was second choice?" asked Gail.

"Look at it logically," replied Sam. "What's hurt, under the circumstances, except your vanity? After the night I saw Helena Sturm in the Stork I made inquiries. I know a lot of people, including some she knows. Wasn't it obvious they'd speculate? Brad's vulnerable enough, I dare say, and he was with her every day. . . . she's very attractive. Gail, when she lights up. Brad couldn't marry her, as she had a husband, and she couldn't leave her husband who had been through that particular horror . . . even if as a husband he—"

"Stop it, I don't want to hear." Sam said inexorably. "Sturm's insanely jealous of his wife . . . perhaps he has reason. They say, after Brad's marriage to you, the talk died down."

"I don't believe it. I don't believe that Brad and Helena Sturm were ever in love."

"Maybe they weren't, maybe it was something else, there are two sides to every moon, and at least two names for everything. Pretty it up, you insist. We would have gone along all right together . . . in marriage, which I suggested, remember? Or out of it, which I also suggested, a long time ago. You could have had your cake and eaten it with all due discretion . . . Okay, so I was willing to cross you, because I was sure, because I find I'm not as good a friend of Brad's as I believed, because a Spencer scandal would have been entertaining. But maybe I didn't think you'd give me that choice, maybe I believed you'd make the deal with me, knowing all the time it was what you really wanted—no needing to make a deal and knowing that too. But you enjoy being sacrificed, you might have enjoyed this too if you could figure it as a sacrifice. You've never been very realistic."

Rogers turned over, an arm trailed down, he groaned, and made an animal noise in his throat. Gail said, "I hope I never see you again, Sam."

"I don't promise. I'll make the noble gesture, however. I'll convey your old man to Chicago, and throw the fear of the law generally into him, and when he realizes that a steady source of income may be lopped off, I imagine he'll play ball, for a while at least."

"It won't be necessary," she said. "I've been under obligation to too many people. I won't add you to the list."

She went to the telephone and, while he watched, started, she dialed her own number. After a long time, and constant ringing, Andrews replied sleepily. At night the telephone in Alexandria's room was switched off.

"Andrews?" she said. "I'm aw—" fully sorry to wake you but my father has been taken ill, and I'm bringing him back for the night. Would you get the small room ready, and help me with him when I come? I'll get a cab now."

"You're out of your mind," said Sam. "I don't think so. I'll put him on his train," she said. "It's time I took a little responsibility."

"Where will you get a cab this time of the night?"

"I kept mine, it's waiting." She picked up the money she had put on the table and went over to the couch. She took her father's lax hand, slapped it sharply, slapped his cheek, and spoke clearly, evenly. "Wake up! We're going home."

He stirred and mumbled and did not wake. Sam said, "You can't, you know."

"I'm afraid you'll have to help, then," she said, "much as I dislike it. He is heavy, but between you and the cab driver . . . She thought a moment and added, "Or I could call an ambulance."

"Oh, no," he said, "go down and get the driver; I'll do what I can."

Gail went downstairs and out where the cab waited, and the driver said cheerfully, "I was wondering about you, miss."

But not especially about the fare she'd rung up, for her knew the house from which he had taken her. He had no idea who lived there but it was a solid structure. She said, "There's an elderly man up the stairs, two flights, in a friend's apartment. Do you think with help you could get him downstairs, and into the cab? I want to take him home. He's ill."

The driver was a big man. He said, "Okay," got out of the cab and followed her. When they reached the flat Sam had managed to put Rogers' coat on him, to button his shirt and tie his tie. His eyes met the cab driver's in comprehension and the driver shook his head. He didn't like drunks riding in his cab. Too many risks. On the other hand you had to maintain the fiction for the lady's sake. He was a chivalrous soul. He said, "All right, chum, let's go."

Rogers was tall and thin, but there was no life in his body and the two men struggled down the stairs with him, with difficulty. Gail threw her coat about her, took her bag and her father's top coat, and followed. They got him into the cab and propped him up and Sam asked, "Can you manage?"

"From now on," she said, "I don't offer her hand, she merely looked at him and said, "Thanks," a little too smoothly. She got in the door slammed, and the gears ground. She did not look back.

It was not a long ride; at that time of night the streets were not crowded, the theater business was over. But it seemed as long as halfway across the continent. The cab rounded corners, Rogers swayed, and Gail put her arm around him and braced him as firmly as possible. It was a very hard thing to do. The smell of liquor made her sick, the sound of his breathing frightened her, the weight against her was distasteful, it made her flesh creep. But this was her flesh too . . . and this breath was, in a sense, her breath.

When the cab stopped in front of the Spencer home, she spoke to the driver. She said, "Will you get in here with him while I fetch someone to help—and then will you help us get him upstairs?"

"Sure," said the driver, curious and friendly. He thought, He certainly tied one on.

She used her door key as she told Andrews she would and he was waiting for her in the hall. She said, "I'm sorry about this, Andrews, but it can't be helped. The driver will help you get him in—we both will." Andrews was an old man, she thought, alarmed, and the stairs were long.

You couldn't get a dead weight like that upstairs and be noiseless about it, no matter how you tried. The light switch clicked in Alexandria's room and she called imperiously, "Who is it?" and Andrews make a small resigned sound.

"Get him in his room," said Gail quickly. She gave the driver two bills, a twenty and a five. She said, "Thank you, for everything," and knocked on Alexandria's door. "Come in," Alexandria said. She was sitting up in bed. She stared incredulously at Gail. "Where have you been?" she demanded. "What was the noise I heard . . . and the voices?"

Gail closed the door. She said, "It's my father, Mrs. Spencer," and neither noticed that she had reverted to the old and easier form of address.

"Your father?"

She said, "I brought him here. There was nothing else I could do. The cab driver and Andrews are putting him in the small room beyond mine. In the morning I'll call a doctor . . . and as soon as he is able, he will leave."

"Where did you . . . ?" Alexandria broke off. She asked, "Is he ill?"

Gail looked at her with level eyes. She said, "He is very drunk. But he won't disturb you. I'll stay with him and see that he doesn't."

She went out and closed the door while Alexandria was still talking. But Gail did not listen or reply.

She met the cab driver coming out into the hall and he said, "Well, thanks, miss. I said I'd stay and get the old—the gentleman undressed but the other old fellow said he could manage."

"He will," she assured him and went downstairs to let him out, to lock the door and attend to the lights.

Then she went back up to the little guest room.

U. S. Anti-Sub Program Gets Navy's Green Light
Russian Undersea Flotilla Has Over 250 Submarines

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—Navy strategists, firmly convinced that Russia is putting all her sea warfare eggs in the one basket of submarines, are placing more and more emphasis on the United States anti-submarine program.

They make no bones about being worried over the more than 250 formidable submarines in Russian hands which reportedly can travel up to 25 knots an hour, can submerge to 1,000 feet, and travel across the Atlantic underwater if they so desire.

Up until just recently, the United States has not had a submarine that combined these potent features. Now that it has—with some added improvements—the word is to get going on production so that there will be some on hand—just in case.

The Navy has placed orders for construction of six high-speed submarines and three anti-submarine cruisers and four destroyers.

The Navy plans to have on hand submarines which can carry troops, transport heavy cargo and provide oil for other submarines. These are separate and in addition to regular subs which will engage in actual sea combat.

Main objective of the Navy is to control not only the oceans upon which American shipping rides, but the air over them and the water under them.

political debate on farm issues when Agriculture Secretary Charles F. Brannan and Senator George O. Aiken (R), Vermont, appeared on a National Press club program.

The two, more than any others, are responsible for the content of the new long-range farm legislation.

Brannan unexpectedly renewed his charge that GOP presidential candidate Thomas E. Dewey has stuck to "vague generalities" in his statements on farm policy.

Aiken, who already had released a prepared text of his talk, interjected the reply that he had personal assurances that Dewey will back the new farm bill to the limit.

Brannan also charged that House Republicans are only waiting for a chance to do a thorough hatchet job on the legislation. Aiken—who probably will be chairman of the Senate agriculture committee if the GOP retains control of the new Senate—said he expects the bill to stand virtually unchanged.

The Vermontor also remarked tartly that House Democrats refused to sign the conference report on the new law. He said about 70 members of the minority party fought the measure to the bitter end.

Allen B. Klein, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, who appeared on the same program, prudently decided to stay out of the political fireworks.

SCIENCE AND THE PRESIDENTS—The part American presidents have played in the development of science has been traced for the first time in a current Library of Congress exhibit.

The display reveals that George Washington was a pioneer of scientific agriculture. Thomas Jefferson invented the "mould board," an improvement on the Eighteenth Century plow.

John Quincy Adams spent four years preparing a 245-page report on weights and measures.

Theodore Roosevelt was a great practical naturalist, a keen observer of birds and an authority on the life histories of game animals.

Kiernan's ONE MAN'S OPINION

None can say that the issues were not well covered in this campaign. Some were so well covered that no other ever saw them.

But it was the most folksy campaign in years. Anyone could have a candidate delivered in his living room by phoning in advance.

Before it ended, Harry was pumping Ickes' hand, Dewey was slapping Joe Ball on the back and Wallace was seen speaking to a man with a bank account.

But the strange bedfellows are about to take separate rooms for another four years. That's politics.

We all learned something from the campaign. None ever realized how hard a man would work to stay off the unemployed rolls.

Now we can get back to our routine bickering.

Edwin Richardson Gets Top Post

Edwin Richardson of Eastmore Avenue has been elected president of the Young Married Couples' Class in the Evangelical United Brethren church of Circleville.

The meeting was held in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Richardson of East Franklin street. Other officers elected were Woodrow Carley, vice-president; Mrs. Edwin Richardson, secretary; and Mrs. Raymond Reichelderfer, treasurer.

Following the business meeting, a short entertainment program was held with Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Richardson and Mr. and Mrs. Reichelderfer in charge. Prizes were won by Eugene Richardson and the Rev. Carl Wilson.

Luncheon was served by the hosts. The next meeting will be held in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Richardson with Mr. and Mrs. Howard Richardson in charge of the program.

Attending the meeting were Mr. and Mrs. Reichelderfer, Mr. and Mrs. Carley, Mr. and Mrs. Owen Fuller, Mr. and Mrs. Verneal Thomas, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Richardson, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Richardson and Rev. Carl Wilson.

Grange Hands Out Degrees At Meeting

Third and fourth degrees were conferred on six members of the Washington Grange in a meeting held Friday evening in the Washington Township school.

Loring Leist, grangemaster, presided over the ceremonies which bestowed degrees on Mr. and Mrs. Orrin Brown, Mr. and Mrs. William Thomas, J. E. Groom and Miss Eleanor McDill.

The group agreed in a business meeting to purchase a moving picture screen for the Washington Township school. The meeting was followed by a lunch in the cafeteria which was decorated in keeping with the Halloween season.

Party Is Staged For Students At High Street

Cider and doughnuts and ice cream bars made young eyes wide at the annual Halloween party in High street school.

Each of the rooms in the school contained a decorated table heaped high with the delicacies, consumed after the pupils staged a grand march of the rooms. The building was decorated with lighted pumpkin faces and foder shocks.

Although the $10 fund earned by the youngsters was stolen from the school during Pumpkin Show Week, kiddies and teachers chipped in to sponsor the annual program.

Assisting in the affair were the teachers, Miss Sophia Parks, principal, Mrs. Margaret Mills, Mrs. Ruth Florian, Mrs. Blanche Woltz, Mrs. Eloise Dunkle and Mrs. Dwight Weiler, the janitor, William Friece and Mrs. Mame Groome, city health nurse.

Susan Baughman Given Birthday Party In Home

Susan Baughman was feted in her home Saturday when a group of her little friends met to honor her on her eighth birthday.

Attending the party were Mary Cochran, Sharon Hedges, Ann Steele, Elizabeth Grant, Joanna and Florene Goldschmidt, Frieda Mader, Margaret Huffer, Lois Wittich, Sara Jane Wantz, Phyllis McCoard, Judy Norman, Carol Barnes and Carol Weiler.

A series of games and contests consumed the afternoon, with prizes won by Elizabeth Grant, Frieda Mader, Ann Steele, Carol Barnes, Sara Jane Wantz and Judy Norman.

Following the games period the group retired to the living room, decorated with pumpkins, orange and black candles and crepe paper. The table was centered by a large birthday cake.

The party was given by Susan's mother, Mrs. Linden Baughman, assisted by Mrs. C. P. Heiskell, Mrs. Fred Roundhouse and Mrs. E. R. Coffland.

Ringgold Class Holds Session

Monthly meeting of Christian Endeavor class of Ringgold EUB church was held Friday in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Peters of Circleville.

The meeting, called by President Walter Spangler, was in the form of a masquerade, each of the members masked for the session. Traditional Halloween refreshments followed the business session.

Scripture lesson and reading were presented by Mrs. Harry Betz, and the evening was concluded with games and contests.

Methodist Youths Hold Picnic, Hike

Members of First Methodist church youth organization, their guests and counsellors Sunday enjoyed an outing at Old Man's Cave.

A picnic lunch was served in the shelter house, due to inclement weather, and the afternoon was spent hiking the many trails adjoining the park.

27 Youngsters At Masquerade

Children of the Presbyterian Sunday school classes were given a masquerade Halloween party in the church basement Saturday afternoon. All 27 of the youngsters in attendance were costumed.

Prizes were won by Lynn Reichelderfer and David Young, judged by the Rev. Donald Mitchell, Mrs. Gerald Miller and Mrs. W. C. Watson.

PENN EYES PENN STATE

College Football Teams Nearing End Of Schedule

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—Football moved into crucial November today as all of the big teams survived the weekend without a single upset.

However, such may not be the case next Saturday when Penn will be faced with the monumental task of getting by Penn State.

This one is a natural. Penn, unbeaten and untied this year, has gone through 13 games without defeat. State has been tied this season but is unbeaten in 15 games.

The Nittany Lions got a good warmup for this classic by trouncing Colgate, 32 to 13, while Penn enjoyed a 40 to 7 breeze over Washington and Lee.

The unbeaten and untied Army Cadets belted VPI 49 to 7 as punishment for the southerners' temerity in picking on the Black Knights to score their first touchdown of the season.

Saturday's clash between Georgia Tech and Tennessee may furnish an excellent line on the relative merits of Tech and North Carolina, the two unbeaten and untied southern leaders.

CHOO-CHOO Charley Justice of the Tar Heels had to throw two touchdowns passes last week to beat the Vols, 14 to 7, and the Rambling Wrecks trailed Duke at halftime before spurting to a 19 to 7 win.

California was not overly impressive in beating Southern California, 13 to 7, and Michigan, unbeaten since losing to Illinois in 1946, had to go all out to gain a 28 to 20 verdict over the Illini.

Notre Dame, which is unbeaten in 24 starts and has scored in every quarter this season, crushed Navy 41 to 7. The Midshipmen, who have lost 11 straight as a result of scheduling the toughest teams in the nation, will not enjoy a "breather" this week in—your guessed it, Michigan.

Notre Dame will take it easy against a disappointing Indiana eleven which took a 30 to 7 drubbing from Minnesota.

Nevada solidified its claim to a place on the list of unbeaten and untied leaders—there are nine—by slaughtering Oklahoma City university 79 to 13.

Northwestern qualified as the Big Nine's probable Rose Bowl representative by trouncing Ohio State, 21 to 7.

Oregon, which still has a good chance to wind up in the Pasadena classic, barely nipped St. Mary's, 14 to 13.

All-American Doak Walker was a one-man gang as Southern Methodist took over in the southwest with a 21 to 6 win over Texas. Walker scored two touchdowns and passed for the other.

GEORGIA routed Alabama, 35 to 0, in what was supposed to be a close game. This was the Crimson Tide's worst defeat since 1910.

Dartmouth also displayed unexpected strength in running wild against Yale, 41 to 14. The Indians snapped a string of four straight defeats by the Elis and registered their highest score ever in this Ivy League classic.

Missouri's powerhouse smothered Kansas State, 49 to 7, and Cornell regained considerable prestige in the east with a 20 to 13 triumph over hard-luck Columbia.

In the day's only upset, de-emphasized New York university nosed out Lehigh, 21 to 20.

2 New Records Going Into Pro Football Books

By International News Service

Two new records went into the archives of the two pro football leagues today.

Slingshot Sammy Baugh of Washington completed 17 of 24 passes for a new National Football League mark of 446 yards, as the Redskins bashed the Boston Yanks, 59 to 21.

The Buffalo Bills, who tied Baltimore for first place in the eastern division of the rival All-America Conference by trouncing the Colts 35 to 17, gained 892 yards to crack the conference total-offense record.

Ben Agajanian of the Los Angeles Dons kicked a 50-yard field goal, only three yards short of the junior circuit mark, as the Dons upset the Brooklyn Dodgers, 17 to 0.

Tommy Thompson completed 16 of 22 passes to spark the Philadelphia Eagles to a 34 to 7 landslide over Pittsburgh.

BUT PERHAPS the best all-round performance of all was contributed by the New York Yankees' versatile Pete Layden, who accounted for 332 of the 494 yards the Yankees piled up in belting the Chicago Rockets, 42 to 7. He completed nine of 13 passes, three of them for touchdowns.

The races among the leaders in the two sections of both circuits now are tight.

Chicago's Bears and Cardinals remained tied for first place in the western division of the NFL. The Bears blasted the New York Giants, 35 to 14. The Cardinals beat Los Angeles 27 to 22 but got a scare when Howard Hickey wound up the game with three straight touchdowns on passes from Jim Hardy.

Detroit, the only team in either league which had failed to win a game, cracked the ice by upsetting Green Bay, 24 to 20.

Schmeling Quits Ring For Good

BERLIN, Nov. 1.—Max Schmeling threw in the towel today.

The former world's heavyweight champion, now 43, decided to quit the ring for good after losing a 10-round decision yesterday to Richard Vogt of Hamburg, the German lightweight champion.

Schmeling was disgusted by his performance. He lost all ten rounds.

Vogt, who is 36, said today he wants a bout with England's Freddie Mills, lightweight champion of the world.

OSU Rose Bowl Hope Shattered

COLUMBUS, Nov. 1.—Ohio State university's Rose Bowl hopes lay crumbled in tiny pieces today, shattered and ground into nothingness by a Northwestern "Miller."

The Miller in question answers to the name of Johnny and Coach Wes Fesler and his Buckeyes tell you he is quite some football player—at least he was Saturday when Northwestern defeated Ohio, 21 to 7, in Evanston.

Ohio State, thanks to Jerry Krall's 57-yard touchdown sprint, succeeded in holding the Wildcats to a 7-7 halftime tie but young Mr. Miller put an end to the faint hope the Bucks might spring an upset.

Miller went for 19 yards after the Wildcats had taken the ball on their own 47-yard line, added three yards and, after another play, got loose over Ohio's left tackle and cut back for a touchdown, leaving sprawled Buckeyes vainly trying to reverse themselves.

Miller also scored the Wildcats' third touchdown and added several other brilliant runs to keep the Bucks flat on their backs the entire second half.

Local Farmers Urged To Take Tip From West On Fixing Up Old Barn

Larry A. Best, Pickaway County agricultural agent, said Monday local farmers might take a tip from a group of Nebraskans on solving the problem of what and what to do with the old horse barn.

Best reported that: "In passing, Old Dobbin left an empty stable and a hollow loft. These barns take a toll in chore labor, in upkeep of unused space, in interest on investment that pays no return. Until recommissioned, they are a drag on agriculture, a dead load against every farm. There are 2,900 such buildings units in Gage County, Nebraska. Of these, 2,700 are in use, and 2,200 need some work done on them. The Beatrice Times is sponsoring a barn-remodeling campaign in that territory. The campaign started early in 1948, with prizes for the best plan of work to be done and the best job already finished." Best said reports show that 50 farmers entered the contest and some 150 joined a barn tour afterward. That started a mass movement toward remodeling. One barn-equipment maker sent a man into the territory to help with the conversions.

NEBRASKA College of Agriculture keeps an extension service specialist on remodeling in Gage county. By the end of the year, it is estimated 200 to 500 remodeling projects will be completed. Most of the barns are being made into dairy cow housing. Dairying is the enterprise which needs upbuilding to balance

Gage County farm production. In many cases the conversion is to milking unit or loafing shed, which will allow inexpensive shift to other livestock. A few barns are being made over for chickens, some for hogs and beef cattle. "Better pay for farmers is the push behind converting the barns," Best stated. "Those who are dairying begin getting their remodeling money back right away in higher prices for milk. After remodeling, most of them make Grade A."

Buck Skin Joe Says: "Consider the Eskimos... in spite of sub-zero weather, they're the happiest people on earth." "The Eskimos discovered thousands of years ago, that even in sub-zero cold, loose-fitting garments mean greater warmth. Freedom of action is just as necessary for body warmth as it is for good shooting." "The human body generates its own heat. In pure wool garments, this heat, instead of escaping, is bottled up in millions of tiny air cells of the wool fleece. It is these little 'hot air furnaces' that keep you so warm in my new Buck Skin Joe. "The pure wool yarns are twisted like a steel cable (for strength), but retain their fluffy, woolly softness. The pattern is a handsome plaid-over-plaid." "Big, roomy body; two button-flap pockets, extra large; rayon-lined yoke; buttons stick to their post and all parts are reinforced to prevent ripping."

Clerics Demand Gambling Probe In Columbus

COLUMBUS, Nov. 1 — Two East Columbus clergymen, who have been doing a bit of probing on their own, today demanded an official probe of gambling in Franklin County.

The two are Dr. Joseph Belcastro, of East Columbus Church of Christ, and the Rev. Robert W. Odell, of Nelson Memorial Baptist church. Following a conference with Frank H. Kearns, Republican candidate for prosecutor, they stated:

"We have concluded that some type of investigation, whether grand jury or by the prosecuting attorney, should be made in the immediate future. The means of the investigation we leave to the discretion of the office of the prosecuting attorney."

And that, the ministers said, is that. They will make no further statement before tomorrow's election.

But after the election, they said, they will make a personal follow-up, regardless of who is elected prosecutor.

They said that Kearns, who is attempting to unseat Prosecutor Ralph J. Bartlett, was "most cooperative and he showed us the facts."

Solon Doubts Release Of Dean

COLUMBUS, Nov. 1 — Gov. Clarence Meadows of West Virginia today informed Franklin County authorities that "a serious question" of his power to release Homer Jack Dean, 37, to county officials has delayed decision on his extradition.

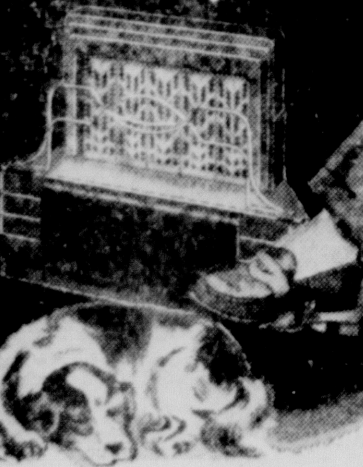

Dean is under indictment in Columbus on a first degree murder charge in connection with the slaying last Dec. 10 of Elmo Rice, Columbus realtor. The extradition hearing was held in Charleston, W. Va., June 29. However, Dean is now serving a life term in West Virginia as a habitual criminal.

Students Sure Dewey To Win

HIRAM, Nov. 1—If the presidential election were decided at Hiram College, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey would be in the White House next January.

The New York governor defeated President Truman 382 to 111 in a campus pre-election poll. Of the students polled, 90 percent expressed the belief that Dewey would win Tuesday.
